REMEDY.

SPONSOR WARRANTED. IF INSTRUCTIONS ARE FOLLOWED.

Call for Circular describing all symptoms.

SYMPTOMS. THE SYMPTOMS OF CATARRH are generally apparent at first very slight. Persons first have a cold, then they have frequent attacks, and are more liable to the disease of temperature. In this condition, the nose may be dry, or a slight discharge, thin and watery, afterwards becoming thicker and more abundant. The eyes are watery and inflamed, the throat is sore, the voice is hoarse, and the chest is oppressed. The bowels are constipated, and the urine is scanty and of a dark color. The general health is impaired, and the patient is liable to all the diseases of a debilitated system. Another common and important symptom of Catarrh is that the patient is obliged to clear his throat in the morning, or to spit out a thick, yellowish mucus, which has fallen down from the head during the night. When this takes place the patient may be sure that the disease is on its way, and should use the medicine at once. The above are but few of the many Catarrh symptoms.

A single Bottle will last a month to be used three times a day.

The King of Pain. Read the evidence.

By the King of Pain. Read the evidence: "Some three years ago, the small-pox broke out in Harborside, and for many weeks I was in constant attendance upon patients afflicted with this most distressing disease. As the duties of my position required, I was obliged to visit the patients in their homes, and in the most filthy and unhealthy surroundings. My liver failed in its usual functions; disease of the spine followed, and my kidneys were also affected. Add to these afflictions a constant constipation of the bowels, attended by severe headache, and the reader can judge of my situation. With such a complication of diseases I was still compelled to work, and was only enabled to do so by the constant use of purgative medicines, which I have steadily taken for fourteen months. In that time, the small-pox eventually brought my system to its normal condition again. I heard of Dr. McBride performing miraculous cures with his King of Pain, and I decided to try it. I used it, as 'drowning men catch at straws,' I called upon him, and a few minutes after a single application of his King of Pain appeared. Encouraged by such a marvelous cure, I used his King of Pain internally; and the 15th day of August, in the year of our Lord 1864, I was again a sound man. The small-pox, the spine and bowels are as sound in every respect as they were years ago, and I was able to do as well as a full day's work and sleep after it as well as before. I have since used his King of Pain in several other cases, and with the same success. I reside in Harborside, Harborside, North St., Fifth Ward, Harborside, JACOB ZIEGLER.

The Intelligencer.

FROM RICHMOND.

The Late Meeting in Capitol Square. President Johnson and the Virginia-They went to see him-Representation of all Debts Contracted in Confederate "truck."

(Correspondence of the Intelligencer.)

RICHMOND, Sept. 1st, 1865.

The mass meeting of the citizens of Richmond, on Tuesday afternoon, was a brilliant success, and from it, we have every reason to anticipate most satisfactory results. In point of numbers and in respectability of its elements, the assembly was all that could be desired, and I venture the assertion that in no city of the South could more genuine enthusiasm have been elicited from a popular assembly, or a more patriotic spirit have been displayed than in the audience delivered on Capitol Square last Tuesday afternoon.

A noticeable feature of the affair was the prominent appearance of several gentlemen but recently conspicuous as zealous confederates, and in every instance the addresses of these gentlemen were calculated to foster the rapidly growing feeling of genuine loyalty among the people of Virginia. Judge William H. Lyons, his father, James Lyons, Esq.; William H. Macfarland, and K. V. Daniel, Esqs., were the speakers. The address of Mr. Lyons, who has been so long prominent in Virginia politics, and who is doubtless, as well known to your readers, as an able lawyer has been especially commended for its manly eloquence, and the frankness with which he acknowledged the overwhelming defeat of the South in all the issues which they made in beginning the late revolution, and advised a cheerful acceptance of their present situation by the southern people, and a first thorough understanding of all circumstances to the Union of their fathers. The resolutions offered by Mr. Daniel, and adopted by the meeting, were in all respects appropriate, and we hope for good results from their publication throughout the North, as a vindication of our people from the unscrupulous misrepresentations of mendacious correspondents, who are more numerous than profitable among us. The committee of gentlemen appointed by the meeting, to extend an invitation to President Johnson, to visit Richmond, will, in pursuance of their instructions, visit Washington in a few days, and will endeavor to secure a short time our people will have the good fortune to enjoy an opportunity of making known to the President their real feelings, and of testifying to him in person, their respect for the great office which he fills.

There can be no question that the South will rally to the support of the Union, and that the late revolution will be a decisive one. The sympathy will be henceforth given him. In evidence of this, we hear of popular demonstrations throughout the Southern States, indicating the purpose of the people to support the Union, and to repudiate the late revolution. The conviction is in the Southern mind, that its only hope rests in Andrew Johnson, and that from his policy the South may expect everything to which she is entitled; and from this conviction arises the enthusiastic support which the people begin to realize.

In some of the surrounding counties the canvass for Congress and the Legislature begins to wax warm, and from the combined influence of a multiplicity of issues, national, state, county, corporate, political, and personal, the people are likely to witness a most interesting hubbub. So many gentlemen are in the situation of Othello, without an "occupation," that candidates for any position promising "greenbacks," no matter how few, are necessarily very numerous. I am told that in a disputation at Harborside, a few days since, one of the candidates placed himself fully and squarely upon the platform of "repudiation," as applicable to all debts contracted with Confederate "truck" was the circulating medium. The people of New Kent in public meeting have indignantly protested against the adoption of the policy of "repudiation," and doubtless a large majority of the people will be found in opposition to it. I am glad to hear of the probability of the unanimous election of Robert Mayo, Esq., in the first congressional district. Mr. Mayo is an old line whig of anti-revolutionary and conservative manner identified with the rebellion. Messrs. Douglas and Taylor, his opponents, are ineligible in consequence of having been members of the Virginia legislature during the war. The statements published in various northern journals concerning General Robert E. Lee, to the effect that he was about to leave the country, &c., &c., are all entirely unfounded. I have late information from the General's temporary residence in Cumberland county, where he is quietly residing in the midst of his family, retired from the world, making no pretensions to display, and seeking only to avoid notoriety while he consults with all his friends, who seek his advice, a ready and cheerful loyalty to the United States, and expresses his determination to share the fortunes of Virginia, and exert himself earnestly and constantly for her advancement. His son, Wm. H. T. Lee, has a Major-General in the Southern army, and very prominent in most of the cavalry battles in Virginia, is at work on his farm near the White House, on the Pamunkey river.

Business is still improving, new buildings rapidly going up, new firms opening stores, and even additional newspapers are being started. The extreme weather has been very hot, and the weather is now becoming cooler, and all claim to be doing a prosperous business. Weather excessively hot, arrivals at the hotels numerous, and money very scarce. CHATHAM.

MORAL RESPONSIBILITY OF WOMEN. The editor of a German journal, who is an enthusiastic champion of woman's rights, recently published a very remarkable article, in which he establishes the philosophical fact that the execution of Mrs. Suratt was the greatest judicial acknowledgment of woman's moral responsibility, for although the execution of women for murder is common in England, that for participation in political crimes is altogether unknown in the west, and characteristic of a country in which woman holds a much higher position than in Europe, and hence is deemed worthy of the highest responsibilities, reaching, as in the instance of Mrs. Suratt, to the infamous height of the gallows, and pointing out the eligibility of logic to the sublime elevation of the presidency.

JOHN SMITH.

A Tale with a Moral-A Pretty Good Take-off on the Boston Style.

BY ORPHUS C. KEEL.

From the New York Saturday Press.

John Smith sat at his table, in the lowest depths of a dreary coal-miner, and helped himself to some more pork and beans. "I know not what there was way down in the black recesses of the man's hidden soul, but he knew that he was not much pork and beans. I look into my heart to find an answer to the question, but no answer comes. Providence does not reveal all things to us. Is it not well it should be so?"

He was a hard, iron-looking, admanlike man. His eyes were glowing furnace for the crucible of thought. You felt that he had been broken when looked at you.
